BRITISH REPORTED CONCENTRATING ARMY ON THE SOUTHERN FRONTIER OF TURKEY

Russians Repel German Advance North of Orel

But Moscow Reports Enemy Is Throwing Fresh Troops into Action

LONDON, Friday, June 18 (AP)—The Red army was reported officially early today to have smashed repeated German efforts to regain lost positions north of Orel for the fourth straight day yesterday, but the enemy is throwing fresh troops into action on this sector where it has been expected the Germans would launch a summer offensive.

In contrast to German high command reports of only "local activity" in Russia, the midnight Moscow bulletin said the Germans had suffered "heavy losses in man-power and material" northwest of Mtsensk, which is forty miles above Orel, in "unceasing attempts" to regain several villages recently overrun by the Red army.

The Germans are "bringing fresh troops into action," said the bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Offensive Postponed

A foreign source in London who has reliable contacts inside Germany said the Germans had planned a powerful offensive in the Orel sector, to begin two days ago, but said it was postponed at the last moment when Field Marshal Gen. Fedor von Bock discovered inadequate supplies at forward bases.

Berlin on the other hand predicted that the Russians themselves were planning to launch a major campaign in the same sector. German broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press suggested the Red army would strike within three weeks.

No matter what the German intentions are, the Red air force kept up its pounding on rear-line German bases, an offensive jibing with Allied blows struck in the west to weaken Axis war-making capacities.

Start 100 Big Fires

Long-range Russian bombers started 100 big fires on German airbases Wednesday night, a special Moscow announcement said. Explosions also were touched off in ammunition dumps, and hangars and parked planes were damaged in raids that cost the Russians two planes.

The effectiveness of these raids, in conjunction with the heavy British attacks on the Ruhr's munitions factories, would appear to be borne out in the foreign source's report that Germany's summer offensive has been delayed by lack of supplies.

Moscow's midnight communique also pointed out that in one recent raid on Mogilev, German rail and river base on the upper Dnieper 50 miles northwest of Orel, the Red air forces blew up three ammunition dumps, smashed many railway trains, sank a river ship, and killed several hundred Germans.

Jap Casualties In China Heavy

CHUNGKING, Friday, June 18 (AP)—Approximately 40,000 Japanese were killed or wounded in the forty-day battle for the upper Yangtze river, a Chinese army spokesman said today.

Less than two-thirds of the entire Japanese force thrown into the battle managed to escape from the Chinese trap," he declared.

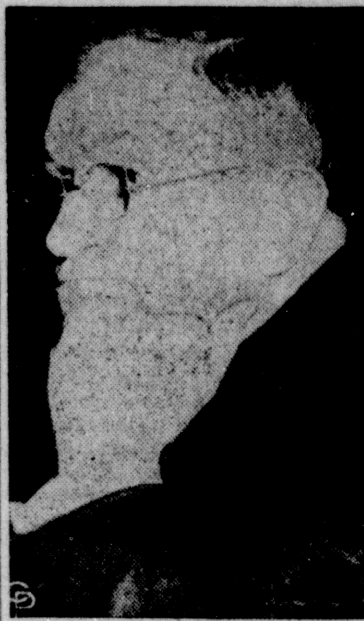

The Japanese, striking below the Yangtze river at points between their big bases at Ichang and Yochow, for a time had seriously threatened China's vital "rice bowl," but the Chinese have virtually recovered the entire area in a strong counter-offensive supported by American and Chinese airmen.

Cologne, Most-Bombed Nazi City, Gets Another Terrific Pounding

LONDON, June 17 (AP)—Cologne, Germany's most-bombed city, was pounded for the 116th time last night by many of the RAF's heaviest bombers, sent to flatten any reconstruction in the vital war industries concentrated along the banks of the Rhine.

Other pre-invasion air fleets shot up all three ships of a channel convoy and rail transport on the continent in early morning hours. And Allied planes kept sweeping over

Americans Knock Down 77 Japanese Planes, Lose Six

One of Greatest Air Battles of the War Fought Over Guadalcanal

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—American airmen knocked down seventy-seven Japanese planes out of the sky over Guadalcanal island in one of the greatest and possibly one of the most significant air battles of the war in the South Pacific, and only six United States aircraft are missing as a result of the engagement.

A navy bulletin today announcing this thirteen to one ratio contained no indication as to the Japanese objective in risking so large a force of bombers and fighters in the Southeastern Solomons, where they have been consistently and badly defeated in the air.

Important to Japs
In authoritative quarters here, however, it was assumed that the objective must have been one of utmost importance to the enemy and bearing directly on future developments of the war.

One suggestion was the Japanese might have been trying to reach an American convoy in the area. Another was that they may have intended to cripple the base on Guadalcanal, in the assumption that it was destined to play an important role in the next big American thrust northward.

22 Bombers Bagged
The engagement took place Wednesday. The enemy planes shot down consisted of thirty-two bombers and forty-five Zero fighters. The total strength of the enemy force was not reported but was considered to be somewhat greater than the number of aircraft they lost.

The raiding force was the largest sent by the Japanese command into the Guadalcanal area since April 7 when fifty bombers and forty-eight fighters attacked a convoy near the island. At that time thirty-nine of the Japanese planes were shot down, while American losses consisted of seven planes, two pilots and three ships—a destroyer, a tanker and an Allied Corvette.

Bomb-shattered Cologne, target of the first 1,000-bomber raid on May 30, 1942, was last struck in a heavy night assault on February 26, when 600 acres of the city were reported devastated. It was raided lightly again April 9.

Allen Charges OPA Is Seeking Price Controls

Counsel for House Com- mittee Sees Plan for Bureaucratic System

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—A House committee's counsel declared today that the Office of Price Administration "is seeking to bring the entire American industrial system under bureaucratic control" by controlling profits. OPA Administrator Prentiss M. Brown replied his agency had no authority to control profits and does not seek to do so.

Other OPA-related developments:

1. Rowland Jones Jr., Washington representative of the National Retail Druggists Association, testified OPA is "considering a nationwide ceiling price on cigarettes," and a committee member commented this might mean an intention to eliminate brands.

2. Rep. Scanlon (D-Pa.) told the House that a "profiteering minority in big business" is attempting to discredit the OPA and "to place control of consumer food prices in the hands of the War Food Administration (WFA) where they knew big business will get a break and the consumer will get it in the neck."

Allen Raises Question

The question of profit control was raised by Harold L. Allen, counsel of the House committee investigating executive agencies, who said subpoenaed files of David Ginsburg, former OPA general counsel, showed this to be an OPA aim. He said:

"Under the guise of wartime price control set up by Congress to prevent a run-away inflation of prices, the OPA is seeking to bring the entire American industrial system under bureaucratic control, by regulating not the prices of its products, but by controlling the sum of its profits, and by freezing them at the level earned by industry during the period 1936-39, irrespective of whether there has been an increase in the price of the manufactured commodity."

In reply, Brown told the committee:

Turkey Recalls Ambassador to Vichy France

Move May Be Start of Break in Diplomatic Relations

By FRANK BRUTTO
BERN, SWITZERLAND, June 17 (AP)—Turkey has recalled Behic Erkin, its ambassador to France, in protest against strong German restrictions on its embassy in Vichy, a Turkish diplomatic source said today.

Erkin's recall to Ankara was not yet considered a rupture in relations between Turkey and German-occupied Vichy, this source said, but it could be a step in that direction. A Turkish embassy spokesman, M. Sevdar, also was told to return home.

The move occurred on the eve of the anniversary of the signing of a German-Turkish friendship treaty June 18, 1941, and as German propagandists were declaring that Germany was "fully satisfied" with Turkey's political position despite "Anglo-American intimations—increasing in number of late—that Turkey already had made its choice in favor of the Allies."

The whole affair served to focus still more attention on the military and political situation in southeastern Europe and the middle east, coming as it did at a time when Allied leaders had sealed the Syrian Turkish border to "protect troop movements" in Allied Syria, and when persistent reports said that Germany's Balkan satellites were seeking a means of escaping the Axis camp.

OFFICIAL GERMAN ADMISSIONS ATTEMPT TO EXPLAIN ERRORS

Jittery Nazi Leaders Say They Have Made Mistakes, but Ask for Public Support

LONDON, June 17 (AP)—Admissions from inside official Germany that the Nazi leadership and military machine have made mistakes were coupled tonight with an appeal for the German public to stand fast behind the vaunted anti-invasion guard thrown up along the menaced European coast.

The Rome radio, in a broadcast recorded by the ministry of information, quoted an article by Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels in Das Reich saying:

"Silence above all should be observed by our noisy critics. In this world no one is infallible and this applies equally well to the government and chiefs-of-staff who are just as liable to make mistakes as anyone else."

He added that "the German public xxx has been spoiled by a long series of blitzkriegs and swift, triumphant victories."

The military commentator of the German-run Paris radio suggested that the Axis recognize the possibility that Allied landings can gain foothold and perhaps cut deeply enough into Europe to menace war industries there.

"Both Germany and Italy have prepared detailed anti-invasion plans," said the broadcast, heard by the Associated Press. "Squadrons of planes are ready to take off and munitions plants have been transferred to safety."

The commentator reported that anti-invasion maneuvers are being held at key points along the whole coast, including tests of pouring out an oil film over coastal waters which could be ignited in a flaming wall as "an ingenious German method" of setting landing boats ablaze.

Following the food chief's address, the league adopted a resolution opposing government grants of subsidies to farmers on the basis that (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Rationing Board To Be Reorganized Following Exoneration of Tawes

BALTIMORE, June 17 (AP)—The Crisfield War Price and Rationing Board which ten days ago exonerated State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes of violation of the pleasure driving ban was ordered reorganized tonight by State Price Administrator Leo H. McCormick.

Declaring he was acting "to assure more efficient operation of the board," McCormick ordered the addition of two members to the three-man panel. None of the present members was replaced.

The State Office of Price Administration head said he acted after members of the board, in conference with him, admitted they erred in hearing the charges against Tawes and also in arriving at the decision clearing the comptroller.

Members of the board which on the night of June 7 cleared Tawes of the pleasure driving charges are John Holland, chairman, Honis A. Tull and Edward M. Milbourne. M. B. Thawley is the chief clerk. Tawes was subsequently called before a specially-appointed OPA

By NOLAN NORGARD
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, June 17 (AP)—Mosquito bombers from the Malta force—one of the three Allied air arms which have been pounding at the Axis throughout the Mediterranean—have smashed once again at enemy communications and military centers in both Sicily and Southern Italy.

This was disclosed today in a Malta communique, while headquarters here was announcing that bad weather had grounded the great Northwest Africa bombardment squad for the first time in more than two months. From this area only routine patrol and reconnaissance was possible yesterday.

Organized Labor Urges Veto of Anti-Strike Bill

Green, Murray and Rob- ertson Says Legislation Is "Wicked"

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—Three of organized labor's leading spokesmen advised President Roosevelt today that the labor disputes bill now before him would hamstring the War Labor Board (WLB) and might force the AFL and CIO to withdraw from it.

They said the bill would virtually destroy unions and minority rights, violate the guarantee of free speech, and encourage strikes.

An analysis of the bill containing these assertions was signed by AFL President William Green, CIO President Philip Murray, and David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, an independent union.

Leaders Criticize Bill
The three leaders said the legislation "is a wicked, vicious bill, it is the worst anti-labor bill passed by Congress in the last hundred years. It is born of revenge and malice. It is the very essence of Fascism. It destroys the philosophy of voluntarism on which free trade unionism is founded."

"It destroys the foundation on which the principles of collective bargaining rest. Compulsion, civil damages and criminal penalties are the unholy trinity by which this act accomplishes its evil purpose."

Rome Radio Sees Signs Of Invasion Starting From Turko-Syrian Line

Unconfirmed Report Taken To Explain Closing of Border and Recall of Turkish Ambassador from Nazi-Controlled Vichy; Hitler's Plans for Offens- ive Against Russia Believed Off

LONDON, Friday, June 18 (AP)—The Rome radio broadcast a report early today that "large British forces are concentrating along the Southern frontier of Turkey," after previously telling its listeners of "many landing craft concentrating from African coasts toward Pantelleria."

The broadcast, recorded by Reuters, apparently was Italy's interpretation of the closing of the Syrian-Turkish border. There was no confirmation from Allied quarters, and none of course was expected even if the report were true.

A foreign source here already had reported that front-line supply shortages born of allied air attrition had forced the Germans to call off a scheduled Russian offensive.

On this same cheerless day for the Axis, new difficulties were reported in Rumania, and a Turkish diplomatic source in Bern, Switzerland, said the Turkish ambassador had been recalled to Ankara from Nazi-controlled Vichy in protest against gestapo restrictions upon the embassy.

Shortages Hamper Nazis

The Germans, after a quarrel of high commanders, decided not to risk another all-out drive against the Russians this summer, but were unable even to carry out a limited offensive in the Orel sector scheduled for June 16 because of shortages, said a foreign source with reliable contacts inside the Reich.

German troops already were moving into positions when the offensive was postponed, this source said, the first time that German plans had been delayed because of any shortages. The informant gave this account:

Field Marshal Gen. Fedor von Bock, Nazi commander-in-chief in Russia, argued down the proposal of Hitler and Lieut. Gen. Eberhard Wolfram, his principal strategist, for an all-out offensive, even resigning in order to win his point. Wolfram resigned when von Bock's program was accepted, but von Bock had to halt the June 16 plans when he found forward supply depots with insufficient food, fuel, and munitions.

Opposed Big Gamble

Von Bock was pictured as feeling it would be madness to make a big gamble in Russia, while invasion of Europe was threatened.

The heavy Allied aerial offensive against Germany, and the mighty Russian raids upon German airfields, transportation, and supply dumps were credited with contributing largely to the German shortage, and hampering the Nazis' will to carry an offensive war into Russia.

Nazi Drive in Russia

Believed Unlikely

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—Informed American military opinion tends to view the Nazi slowness in launching a June offensive against Russia as evidence of the straits to which Hitler's war machine has been reduced by converging Anglo-American pressure.

Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information (OWI) recalled today that German offensives in 1941 and 1942 started respectively June 27 and June 21. Both of those offensives became winter-bogged, so it seemed obvious Hitler would try to get underway earlier this year to give him more time to campaign before winter set in.

"Bunk" was another comment interpolated by the OWI director as he read to a press conference from statements by Bridges and Short printed in the congressional record.

Sec. Knox Reports End of Elk Hills Oil Reserve Proposals

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—Secretary Knox announced tonight that prompt steps will be taken to terminate the navy's contract with Standard Oil Company of California for operation of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve and that "necessary adjustments" will be made.

The announcement came after the company notified Knox of its willingness to end the arrangement, called "illegal and invalid" by a Justice department official.

The decision to cancel resulted from a legal decision of the Department of Justice that the proposed arrangement exceeded authority granted by law, the navy said.

100 Nazi Planes Reported Ruined

LONDON, June 17 (AP)—American Flying Fortresses destroyed probably as many as 100 German fighters in the assault on Bremen and Kiel June 13 in what has been officially described as the "American airmen's greatest single battle of the war," it was announced today.

After the raids it was announced that twenty-six Flying Fortresses had been lost in the twin attacks on the German shipyards, but an Eighth Air Force announcement today disclosed that the Kiel raiders destroyed "by official count an estimated average of four fighters for every bomber lost, while absorbing the total enemy resistance so successfully as to permit a larger attacking force to bomb its target at Bremen almost without fighter molestation."

Frostburg Brick Plant Is Badly Damaged by Fire

Blaze Sweeps Main Building of Savage Mountain Plant

Fire of undetermined origin swept through the main building and badly damaged adjacent buildings of the Savage Mountain Plant of the North American Refractories Corporation in Frostburg last night.

The fire was discovered about 10:30 in the building housing the electric pan where fire clay was browned and at 11:30 firemen were still fighting the blaze which had gained considerable headway. By midnight it was reported under control.

Ceased Operating June 1

Organized in 1864, the plant was a going concern until operations were suspended June 1 of this year because of inability to get labor. Next to the coal industry, it was the oldest industrial concern in Frostburg. According to workmen, who ended their employ May 25, most of the equipment had been moved out and most of the stock shipped away before operations were suspended.

The walls of the buildings were of brick, but the roofs were wood structures which had been dried out considerably by the heating processes of brick manufacture. The age of the buildings and the wood made them tinder to the rapidly spreading flames.

Equipment Damaged

Although there was no nearby property to be endangered, the blaze was spectacular. Most of the damage was in the main building in which some valuable pieces of equipment were still housed.

Although it is not operating, the plant is still owned by the American Refractories Corporation, of Cleveland, Ohio. At the time it was closed, G. A. Shuckhart, of Frostburg, was manager.

There were several sheds in which undelivered supplies of stock were stored, but these were not damaged. The plant is located on Bowery street, near the C. and P. railroad tracks.

No estimate was placed on the damage by Shuckhart, who declined to make any statements.

150 Motorists To Face O.P.A. Ration Charges

Will Be Prosecuted for Driving in Excess of Allotments

BALTIMORE, June 17 (AP)—State Office of Price Administration officials announced tonight that approximately 150 motorists who have driven their cars in excess of mileage allotted to them by their rationing boards will be prosecuted.

Officials said a check of speedometers in tire inspections and by other routine means had disclosed that many motorists had driven on gasoline which officials asserted must have been black market fuel.

They said one case had been found where a war worker had driven 3,600 miles further than his gasoline ration allowed, and another man had driven 5,000 excess miles.

Cornelius P. Mundy, OPA enforcement attorney, who with an assistant, Reuben Shilling, is prosecuting the cases, said "we are greatly interested in ferreting out the source of the coupons which the violators have evidently been procuring through one means or another, as well as by the purchase of black market gasoline."

"The manner of securing evidence on motorists who have had their fun in driving for pleasure while others have been kept at home indicates that our routine check has been most effective in the end."

Baltimore Coal Detail Ordered Back to Duty To Prevent Swindling

BALTIMORE, June 17 (AP)—Police Commissioner Hamilton B. Atkinson ordered the Baltimore police coal detail back to duty today following reports that some coal deliveries were as much as fifty per cent short in weight.

The detail, called off duty two months ago, was reinstated after Leon Abramson, city councilman, and Dwight L. Holmes, general manager of the Better Business Bureau, reported to the commissioner that seventeen cases had shown shortages in weight.

Holmes said some deliveries were as much as fifty per cent light. The coal detail was established six years ago to combat delivery of bootleg coal from the Pennsylvania fields and to detect other irregularities.

Holmes said, "our investigations show that unscrupulous dealers have been delivering under-weight coal, but this practice will not continue, thanks to Police Commissioner Atkinson and the activities of the Better Business Bureau."

"Any householder or business firm who suspects under-weight coal has been delivered may obtain an accurate check by calling on the Better Business Bureau."

War Labor Board Delays Decision On Miners' Pay

Adjourns Without Announcing Portal-to-Portal Wage Increase

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—The War Labor Board adjourned late today without reaching a decision on the underground travel pay issue of the soft coal wage dispute.

The four public members of the board planned to confer further tonight on the case and the board will resume its deliberations at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

No official source would explain the reason for the delay. Earlier today, board members had expressed the hope they would reach a vote today before adjournment.

Members of the policy committee of the United Mine Workers said John L. Lewis, UMW president, had determined on $1.30 a day as the minimum settlement he would accept for underground travel time of miners.

Meanwhile, one local union of the UMW advised the WLB it believed the union should utilize that agency and the Office of Price Administration (OPA) to achieve the miners' demands.

Officers of the local union at Jamestown, Pa., forwarded a resolution which accused the operators of "foxy methods" but urged that UMW Policy Committee "to make use of the demands of the miners and also urge the War Labor Board, who is familiar with the miners' demands and the coal operators' offerings, to set a medium wage raise and use its powers to enforce its decisions on both parties, and be it further resolved that the Policy Committee of the UMW use its influence to have the OPA roll back prices."

The resolution took a stand against strikes, saying they "would help Hitler to defeat our country, destroy our unions and force us into slavery."

Lewis has declined throughout the dispute to participate in hearings before the WLB.

French in Algiers Closer Together

ALGIERS, June 17 (AP)—The French empire's infant provisional government cleared away today three major obstacles to unity and efficient wartime rule.

Meeting for the first time in plenary session, thirteen members of the French Committee for National Liberation took these steps to eliminate the quarrelsome confusion which had reigned in Algiers for a week:

Organized the committee and agreed on its procedure.

Discussed the angry issue dividing Generals Charles DeGaulle and Henri Giraud—the reorganization of the French armed forces and their command—and arranged to make decisions on the basis of majority vote.

Sponsored a study toward the creation of a consultative assembly whereby public opinion could be given more forceful expression during the time when no legislative branch of government exists.

Marauder Bomber Flies 60 Miles On One Engine

Crew Beats Off Enemy and Reaches Base Badly Damaged

By HAOLD V. BOYLE
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, June 17 (AP)—The crew of a Marauder bomber told today how they flew sixty miles on one engine, knocked down a Messerschmitt-109 on the way and made an emergency landing at 170 miles an hour at a fighter base.

"Just after we opened our bomb bay doors on a run over Pantelleria I had trouble with the right engine and it started smoking," said Lieut. Kenneth G. Ross, pilot of Huntington, Ind. "Our ship fell slightly behind formation, and about then at least two Messerschmitts hit us."

Cowling Damaged
"I looked out of my window and saw a big bullet hole in the cowling above my left engine. Tracers were flying past the cockpit. Right then I forgot about the target and cut across our course to catch up with the formation."

But, although the German fighters shot up one engine and a wing tip, the Marauder's gunners dropped one foe and escorted Warhawk fighters got another.

The bombardier-navigator, Staff Sgt. Edward L. Baker of Murfreesboro, Ill., was the first of the crew to see the enemy fighters.

Sighted Nazi Plane
"Tracers went by my window and I looked into the sun and saw a Messerschmitt up there," he said. "That must have been the one that got the engine. I saw another making a pass at the tail."

"I saw those old black crosses as plain as day," said the tail gunner, Sgt. James R. William of Milwaukee, Wis., who poured in three good bursts and said he saw tracers go into him.

"I think I hit the pilot, because he headed right down."

"As he started he turned his belly toward me and I got a shot at it," chimed in Staff Sgt. John K. Moberly of Frederick, Md., turret gunner. He thought, however, that his bullets missed.

such grants would not be a good substitute for "fair prices."

The resolution, termed "more vigorous" than a similar one adopted at the morning session, said that subsidies would create greater confusion in price structures, would discourage farmers in the production of food, and would impose a great burden on taxpayers.

Another resolution favored the induction, followed by the immediate discharge, of farm workers of draft age into military service. The resolution stated that farm boys thus would be placed "in the same patriotic status as the boys who are wearing a uniform."

40 Jap Planes Raid Bena Bena For Third Time

Attack Position 90 Miles Northwest of Lae, High Command Says

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Friday, June 18 (AP)—Forty Japanese planes raided the area of Bena Bena, ninety miles northwest of Lae, yesterday for the third straight enemy strike at that sector, the high command announced.

Elsewhere on New Guinea, four Japanese planes raided Port Moresby and one was hit by anti-aircraft fire.

Eight Japanese barges were destroyed and twelve damaged by Allied bombers near Lae.

As on the previous two raids, the command said little about the Bena Bena attack other than to report it. The sector which has emergency landing fields has not been mentioned prior to the raids.

Tuesday fifty-seven enemy planes were sent against the area, twenty-seven of them bombers. Wednesday six bombers and six fighters formed the raiding party.

The Bena Bena area, inland from the north coast of New Guinea, is considerably above the Japanese bases of Lae and Salamaua, long threatened by infiltrating Allied troops from the south whose front line is at Mubo, twelve miles below Salamaua.

The Allied attacks near Lae were directed at the type of transportation favored recently by the enemy to bring supplies down the coast to Lae.

On New Britain Island, medium bombers and attack planes went after the airdrome and supply dumps at Cape Gloucester after which a four-engined bomber got in some blows.

Churchmen Protest Sunday Games in Baltimore Stadium

BALTIMORE, June 17 (AP)—The presbytery of Baltimore requested today a public hearing on the action of the City Park Board in permitting Sunday athletic events in Baltimore stadium.

In letters to Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, to the Park board and to the Council of Churches, the presbytery asserted a protest against use of the stadium for "commercialized sports on Sundays," and "in principle and in detail" endorsed the earlier protest lodged by the Methodist preachers' meeting.

"It is wrong in principle for the municipal medium to be put to a use which violates the conscience of a substantial number of taxpayers and to compel them, through the taxes they must pay, to support this use of public property," the letters stated.

ed that OWI had "prevented industry from telling the full story of production."

"That is false," Davis emphatically told his press conference. "I do not know what evidence he could have twisted into that conclusion."

Short said that Davis's Boston speech made it evident the OWI director "conceives his real title to be that of American propaganda minister." He also said Davis should "return to his office as chairman of the New York American Labor Party."

After terming Short's remarks "moistly nonsense," Davis said his highest office in the Labor party was membership of a county committee which had more than 2,000 members. He called Short's reference to him as a former New York chairman of the party, an example of his accuracy.

When reporters pressed him for an elaboration on his statement that news from the national capital is not adequately covered, Davis said, "that, perhaps, was a large statement," but contended that news from overseas is "better covered."

Navy's Contract

The acting attorney general has asked me to say that the Department of Justice wishes to join in the latter statement and concurs fully and emphatically," Knox added.

A press release by the navy called "unwarranted and false" statements that it was "not intended to make the contract public." The agreement was announced in a navy news release last December and was discussed in trade journals, the navy said. It added copies were submitted to the navy subcommittee of the House appropriations committee last February.

The announced agreement provided for operation of the field as a unit owned in part by the navy and in part by the company. The proposed contract enabled the navy to conserve the field by controlling future production by Standard, the navy asserted, adding:

"It has been the settled policy of the government for many years to acquire control of these lands and to conserve the oil in the land."

Conferees Agree On Record Fund To Expand Navy

Calls for More Than 27 Billion Dollars for Big War Fleet

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—A $27,637,000,000 naval appropriation bill, largest in history for the expanding fleet, was made ready today for final congressional action when House and Senate conferees adjusted differences.

Senator Overton (D-La.) said he hoped to send the measure to the president tomorrow.

The conference added $173,539,000 to the appropriation total approved by the House by accepting Senate amendments providing additional funds for pay, training and maintenance of naval personnel.

The measure carries $9,118,000,000 for construction of surface vessels and $4,583,000,000 for 29,142 airplanes.

The final draft of the bill carried a Senate amendment authorizing construction of replacements for over-age combat vessels and warships lost in action.

The Senate had written into the bill a clause transferring $2,786,000,000 in direct appropriations into contract authorizations, but at the insistence of the House delegation that provision was removed and the straight cash appropriation left in.

New York City Probe Ordered

LaGuardia's Administration Faces Its First Investigation

NEW YORK, June 17 (AP)—The administration of Fiorella LaGuardia, for years the recipient of glowing tributes as a model for municipal government, squared itself today for the first full-fledged investigation into the affairs since the fiery little mayor became New York city's chief executive in 1934.

Not since the famed Seabury inquiry into the administration of former Mayor James J. Walker in 1932 had the prospect of political fireworks been so promising, although the proponents of the move—the city council Democratic majority—insisted that their motives were divorced completely from politics.

Councilman Walter R. Hart, sponsor of the surprise resolution which set up the council investigating committee in a stormy post-midnight session yesterday, told reporters today the inquiry would concern itself with all city departments and would "not be a smear of any individual." Hart is chairman of the investigating committee.

What the inquiry was aimed at specifically was difficult to determine. There have been charges recently that city employees and equipment have been used at Santa Hills, a Dutchess county retreat for department of sanitation workers.

Aside from the normal Democratic antipathy toward the mayor—a political irregular whose support long has come from the city's fusionist group—the investigation appeared largely to be the outgrowth of resentment of the Democratic majority against an administration-sponsored investigation (which misfired) into the distribution of civilian defense stirrup pumps.

Davis said, "Hitler has got to do something pretty soon, x x x"

Coupled with London reports that a Hitler-scheduled offensive in Russia had been overruled by his military high command for lack of supplies and equipment, the Davis estimate is significant. The London informant, his identity undisclosed, said Hitler's generals had forced him to accept a "limited offensive" effort in the pivot of Orel south of Moscow in lieu of a major campaign that would strip other Axis invasion fronts of troop and air protection. Even that has yet failed to develop according to either Berlin or Moscow announcements, increasing the speculation on both sides of the Atlantic as to what lull in Russia at so critical a time means.

Davis noted that Hitler had once referred to a similar pause in Nazi offensive operations in Russia as "a creative pause."

"Only this time it is in our side that is doing the creating," he added.

Magistrate Helps Pay Cabbie's Fine

BALTIMORE, June 17 (AP)—Cab Driver Charles R. Christopher, fined by Magistrate Elmer J. Hammer for failure to keep a proper log and to use the flag on his meter counted up his money and found he lacked five cents on the $11.45 he had been penalized.

"Why not take a gamble with me, Judge?" he asked Hammer. "Let me off now, and next time make it double."

Hammer declined the offer, but produced a nickel from his pocket and gave it to the cabbie, who paid the fine and left.

Treasury Now Willing To Get Along With $12,000,000,000 Extra Taxes

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—The treasury has abandoned hopes of getting $16,000,000,000 in additional taxes during the next fiscal year and is now aiming at a goal of $12,000,000,000.

Secretary Morgenthau acknowledged today there is no chance of Congress enacting a tax bill that would yield the higher sum within the fiscal year limits.

The secretary said he agreed with congressional sentiment that no new taxes should be levied on 1943 incomes and concurred with statements that any levies which became effective on January 1, 1944, could hardly yield $16,000,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year the following June 30.

Delay New Bill.
Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means committee failed to agree on the time to begin consideration of the next tax bill, although Morgenthau told reporters his tax experts already are working with the joint congressional tax committee on recommendations for new levies.

Morgenthau told his press conference the treasury's aim is to finance half the cost of the war out of revenues. With present war costs running about $100,000,000,000 a year and revenues estimated to bring in about $38,000,000,000, that would leave $12,000,000,000 to be raised by additional taxes, he said.

Morgenthau said the treasury, in its war financing activities, would concentrate on a campaign to siphon off into war bonds twenty-five per cent of the people's total earnings during the last half of this year.

Rationing Board

Taxes case was in hearing a pleasure driving charge against a motorist who held no basic ration on the state-owned car in which he made the Georgia trip to attend his son's wedding.

McCormick said members of the board had admitted they erred in hearing the case, and he quoted members of the board as saying they "regretted their decision exceedingly."

The board had exonerated the controller of the pleasure driving charge on the grounds that no other means of transportation was available from Crisfield to the southern limit of the area in which pleasure driving was banned.

McCormick said board members admitted, train transportation was available within twenty miles of Tawes's home in Crisfield.

The OPA head said state rationing officers would be sent to Crisfield in a few days to advise members on all rationing regulations.

in the Rhineland," but the attack was undoubtedly carefully aimed to demolish reconstruction in communications, ammunition plants, chemical works, power stations and other war-important operations in the industrial city.

The foray by the heavy bombers, coming after a Tuesday night break in the hammer blows on German industry, cost fourteen big planes with one fighter also lost, the air ministry said.

Cologne Caught Off Guard
Returning pilots said that the attack on Cologne caught the city's defenses off guard and that anti-aircraft guns did not open up until after the first bombs fell.

The German communiqué said bombs fell on residential quarters "especially in Cologne, and caused losses among the population and damage to buildings."

Everyone of the three ships in the convoy caught off the coast of Holland was damaged, one so severely it probably sank.

In almost hourly offensive sweeps over the continent, RAF fighters shot down a total of nine German fighters during the day. Two of the raiders failed to return.

At sea, an Axis destroyer escorting a convoy was gunned and there was a brilliant flash astern; a minesweeper also was raked with fire.

To the sixteen Axis planes previously reported shot down in heavy Allied offensive air action over Monday night and Tuesday, a headquarters announcement today added five enemy craft for a total score of twenty-one in that period.

American Aerial Forces Rapidly Proving Might

Superiority to Enemy Is Apparent on All War Fronts

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Staff Writer

News from two battlezones half a world apart brings convincing testimony to the already great and rapidly growing superiority of American airmen and planes over both ends of the Axis. No other factor in this war is so sure a pledge of victory.

Over Guadalcanal in the South Pacific American airmen on Tuesday met a great Japanese air armada, probably the greatest single concentration of aircraft in the Pacific war, and shot down forty-five Zeros and thirty-two bombers for a loss of six of our planes missing. The 13-1 toll speaks for itself. It was one of the most devastating air defeats suffered by any belligerent in this war.

American Bombers Score
Word of this battle reached Washington about the time Secretary Stimson was disclosing that American heavy bombers, in their raids of Friday and Saturday on some of Germany's greatest bases, shot down at least 150 and probably 170 German fighters. In the Friday raids on Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven eight Flying Fortresses were lost while from the Sunday attacks on Kiel and Bremen twenty-four failed to return. This five-to-one ratio in planes means that more American airmen were lost than German, for each of the big bombers carried perhaps ten men. But the bag of enemy fighters must be considered more or less a by-product of the raids, whose main objective was destruction of vital enemy bases and facilities.

Prove Versatility
In the south seas it was American fighters against an enemy raiding force; over Germany the American role was reversed. Success in both is proof of the versatility of the American air forces.

These happen to be American triumphs. But the superiority they illustrate is not American alone. It is shared fully by the RAF. And recent reports from the Russian front indicate that the Red air force has become more than a match for the once invincible Luftwaffe.

Ever since the RAF in the climax of the battle of Britain shot down 185 of Goering's planes on Sept. 15, 1940 and ended the threat of invasion there has been no question of British qualitative superiority in the air. Quantitative superiority for the Allies had to wait on the United States' entry into the war and the full mobilization of American industry.

Japs May Start Drives
It is still too early to say there will be no great German or Japanese offensives this year. The numerous suggestions that Hitler has postponed or abandoned his summer drive against Russia may prove only camouflage. The Japanese may yet have their 1943 fling at China, or even Russia.

However, two men who should know say that the British-American air pressure on Germany has compelled Hitler to rob other fronts of air power to protect his vital war industries. Secretary Stimson says the Germans have had to switch hundreds of planes from Russia and the Mediterranean and Britain's air secretary, Sir Archibald Sinclair, says the Western Allies are tying up twice as many German fighter planes as Hitler has been able to spare for the Russian front.

As for the Japanese, General Kenney, our air commander in the southwest Pacific, said three months ago that apparently Japan's "first string team" of the air had been destroyed. The evidence now is that the second team also has been disposed of and Japan is sending in the scrubs.

West Virginians Fined Under Ration Rules

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., June 17 (AP)—The first West Virginians to draw prison terms for illegal procurement of ration books were sentenced today by Judge Ben Moore in federal district court.

After pleading guilty to making false applications for war ration books Nos. 1 and 2, Marie Elsie Chafin of Charleston, was sentenced to the Alderson reformatory for women for two years while John Whitt, also of Charleston, was sentenced to two years in the Petersburg, Va., penitentiary.

West Virginia district OPA investigators had found the couple in possession of five ration books and turned the case over to federal authorities.

Handleman Gets Eight Years on Larceny Charges

Convicted of Stealing 890 Pairs of Trousers and Assault

WESTMINSTER, Md., June 17 (AP)—Harry Handleman, 39-year-old Baltimorean who was convicted by the Carroll county circuit court of a part in the larceny of 890 pairs of trousers from a Westminster factory, was sentenced today to serve eight years in the Maryland penitentiary.

Handleman, after his conviction on the larceny charge, changed previous innocent pleas on two other charges, another accusation of common assault and one of escape from the Carroll county jail.

He had been indicted for assaulting Chief Deputy J. Lee Crammer with a knife before making his escape from the county lockup. He was free about a day late in May, being captured by state police officers near Randallstown.

Handleman was sentenced by Associate Judge James E. Boylan, Jr., to serve six years for the April 24 larceny of the trousers, only a few dozen pairs of which were recovered.

Two Years for Larceny
He was sentenced to serve two years for the larceny of a quantity of jewelry from a Westminster store on May 13. He was sentenced to two years for the larceny of $18.75 from a Westminster weekly newspaper office, the two latter sentences to run concurrently with the six-year term.

He pleaded guilty this morning to the jewelry and money larceny and to the escape charge.

He was sentenced to serve thirty days for the assault on Crammer, after his guilty plea, but was credited with time already served in the county jail while awaiting trial.

Innocent of Conspiracy
Judge Boylan returned a verdict of innocent in a conspiracy charge on which Handleman, Bernard LeRoy Bigham and Joseph Hoff had been indicted. The indictment charged them with conspiracy in the trousers larceny, and police officers at the trial testified they found thirteen pairs of the trousers at Hoff's store in Baltimore.

Judge Boylan said that Bigham, who was convicted with Handleman of the larceny of trousers from the plant of L. Gries and Sons, would be sentenced on that charge Saturday morning. He was lodged in the county jail to await sentencing.

John Hickman, also of Baltimore, pleaded guilty to a part in the theft of money from the Times Printing Company and was sentenced to serve one year in the Carroll county jail.

Ask for Leniency
Ellis Levin, Handleman's attorney, asked Judge Boylan to be lenient in sentencing Handleman, asserting that his client was in failing health.

Handleman and the three other men had been indicted by a special session of the county grand jury which reported its findings on June 14. Handleman was named in six indictments, but was tried on only two—the trousers larceny and conspiracy—before Judge Boylan sitting without a jury.

In announcing his verdict in the larceny case this morning, Judge Boylan said the testimony analyzed with other facts was sufficient to warrant a conviction.

Woman Gets Long Term as White Slave

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—Anna M. Swift, 59, who called herself a "doctor" and operated so-called massage parlors, was sentenced to serve from fifty months to ten years in prison in District of Columbia court today for White slavery.

Justice Matthew F. McGuick, who described the woman's offenses as a "stench in the nostrils of decent people in a community in the civilized world," also imposed a $5,000 fine.

The sentences were on three indictments to which the woman pleaded guilty last week. The violations covered seven counts charging transportation of women for immoral purposes.

Gals Get the Mail, Censors the Needle

AMERICAN CAMP IN INDIA (AP)—Who gets the most letters from your average letter writing soldier, mama or sweetie?

It isn't even a race. The soldier mail censor at this base several hundred miles from any place in particular said that the average soldier who wrote letters as a practice usually sends three a week. One goes to Mama, and two go to the Girl.

It's pretty hard for a soldier in this theatre — or others for that matter — to write interesting letters. They can't say where they are, nor describe the scenery in too much detail as it might give the place away.

Because of the censorship soldiers are forever thinking up new ways to tease it. One lad wrote:

"Dear Mom: I've just read the censorship regulations so you won't be hearing much from me. Good night (and that doesn't mean weather)."

Ferrell Brothers Meet In Battle of Tunisia

LIVINGSTON, Tenn. (AP)—Brothers Truman and Vatus Ferrell entered the Army at different times. They corresponded from their camps, then both were shipped overseas, neither knowing the other was gone.

Recently came letters from both to relatives revealing that in the thick of battle in Tunisia they met face to face. Their commanding officers appreciated the coincidence, too, the boys immediately receiving 24 hours furlough to celebrate.

The Lady Would Like A Different Question

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A man, seeking information on marriage licenses, telephoned Knox county domestic relations court.

"Can you tell me what one has to do to get married in this county?" the man asked.

"That what I'd like to find out myself," returned Clerk Miss Mary Taylor without reflection.

NOWATA, Okla. (AP)—James A. Strickland wonders if his dog isn't just a little too well trained.

Down in his drug store it is Strickland's habit to give Ponto a little ice cream in a paper cup. When Ponto appeared as usual recently there was a run at the fountain and Strickland told him to take it easy. "I'll get to you pretty soon."

Ponto went rummaging into the back of the store and reappeared with a paper cup in his mouth. He set it down before the ice cream cabinet and barked.

This time he got his ice cream.

Bait for Local Government

WHERE does Washington get the notion that the American people by failure of their own efforts and through their local governments, if necessary, they are not able to provide subsistence for their school children?

The notion has grown to such a degree that from a minor activity instituted in a few states as a means of disposing of some of the surplus commodities of the department of Agriculture, which seem to be held in spite of the serious food shortage situation, it has reached the point where an appropriation of nearly a hundred million dollars is schemed for a single year's activity involving free lunches for some 6,000,000 school children.

Senator O'Mahoney seems to have been wrought up considerably about the situation. "There can be no more eloquent commentary upon the failure of our present economic organization," he is reported as saying, "than the fact that school agencies, welfare bodies and groups which are concerned about the proper nutrition of children find themselves compelled to turn to the federal government to handle the problem. It emphasizes the need for national thought upon the problem of restoration of local economic activity, because without it we shall go down the road to an increasing degree of national handling of local matters. If we continue to do so, we shall eventually destroy local political independence. We shall make it impossible for people in their local communities to avoid control by federal agencies and federal law."

All can agree with the likelihood of such possibilities; but one sure way to bring them about is to continue spending federal funds for those things which local government and people have been doing and should continue to do. The real trouble is not that local government and people are unable to handle school nutrition needs, or that the country is suffering from too little federal interference in local and personal affairs but that it suffers from entirely too much of it. It is the consequence, not of shrinking of personal or local responsibility, but of the injection of the federal government into those affairs through the work of those who want to continue feeding at the public crib or who actually believe in collectivism and are using every means to promote it.

Wise Planning For Peacetime

EMPHASIS is being placed on the wrong point in many places with regard to public works planning for the post-war period, but this is not the case, fortunately, in Cumberland.

In too many other places, practically all discussions of the subject center on employment. There is surprising lack of attention to the actual needs of the people in the form of new construction.

That seems to be a case of putting the cart before the horse. It is reminiscent of the boondoggling slant which was prevalent during the depression.

Concentration should not be on public works as an employment agency. The main effort should be to develop a sound program within the realm of private enterprise.

In advance of the economic transition, emphasis should be on other factors instead of on solution of an unemployment problem alone.

Cumberland has realized this by arranging for a commission to formulate plans for definite needed projects, and as this newspaper has repeatedly declared, it is a wise thing. If other units of government, as well as private enterprise, do the same thing, the unemployment problem may never materialize and thus the need for "made work" will be unnecessary.

The Way They Can Stop the Bombings

THERE HAS BEEN a slight flurry of controversy in England over the question of bombing Germany and Italy from the air. A few squeamish ones consider the indiscriminate bombing of civilian centers in enemy territories morally wrong and strategically unsound. One cleric declared that to bomb Rome would be a crime against civilization. But he neglected to point out that Rome can save itself as Paris did.

To the average American reader, who remembers reading of the terrible English blitz, this attitude may seem slightly irrational unless it is remembered that the English people have not forgotten the indiscriminate death and destruction which the Luftwaffe poured on them in 1941, just as they have not forgotten how they stood up to this form of savagery. Some Britons may suffer from the delusion that merciless pounding of Axis cities will cause those people to resist as determinedly as did Londoners and the people of Coventry.

The Nazis have not been slow to play a tune on this trait. Berlin recently issued a long list of alleged Allied damage to ancient German churches, German libraries (what have the Nazis substituted for books in German libraries?), art museums and other cultural monuments.

The Nazis, of course, conveniently overlooked the churches and hospitals they had wrecked in Warsaw, Rotterdam, Coventry, Plymouth and London. Allied military leaders will continue to hit Axis military and munitions centers with every bomb that can be carried over Europe. Complete razing of Axis nations would be a small price to pay for shortening of the war. Axis leaders can stave off this fate by surrendering unconditionally.

The Byrd Committee Shows That Economy Is Possible

THE ONE THING that is hitting the morale of the American people harder than anything else is the continued failure of the Washington administration to exercise reasonable economy in the operation of government. The chief reason for that omission, of course, is political. Those on the pay roll, having enjoyed their good feeding, want to stay on.

Accordingly, the industrious efforts of the Byrd economy committee of Congress represent a highly patriotic endeavor. It should have more support and civilians should do whatever they can to accord it support.

The latest effort of the committee is toward a reduction of the overly-swollen federal pay roll having to do with non-war activities, and that has grown to such an astounding degree that something ought to be done about it, indeed. The federal civilian personnel has leaped to more than three millions having a monthly pay roll of $552,700,300, while the committee finds that there have been "unwarranted" wage increases reflecting a "pirating of employees," and that fewer than forty-five per cent of these employees are engaged directly in war production. It shows where 300,000 of the barnacles can be removed, and demands that they be removed at once.

The committee's demand for a sensible reduction in this personnel follows the citation of inexcusable waste by these jobholders in running up travel and communications bills. "When agencies not essential to the war effort allow their travel and communication expenses to double—treble—even swell to nine times their peacetime levels, when departments and agencies allow increases to alling hundreds of thousands of dollars," the committee found, "then it is time to call a halt to such wasteful and unpatriotic expenditures." It is, indeed, it is a notorious fact that a bureaucrat will invariably seize a telephone instead of writing a letter, the reason being that it is less trouble, and a lot of them travel around when a letter would answer the purpose.

The Byrd committee deserves praise for its work. It has not only been pointing to needless expenditures but showing definitely how they can be reduced. It deserves to get some results.

Indiana's Democratic Governor Schricker says he wants an end of government red tape. This shows the length to which some Democrats will go in a frantic effort to stave off the approaching verdict of the voters.

And whatever became of that boarder who at meal times used to moan: "What? Potatoes, AGAIN!"

When bigger and better spendings are conceived, Washington will spend them.

How Are We Judged?

By MARSHALL WASLIN

I stood before a piece of art. It was something a man had made with dabs of paint, with sure hands, with accurate eyes, with rich imagination, with love of beauty and truth.

It was a landscape of my own state, of my own beloved homeland. There were low, brown and golden hills in the painting, and all the hollows were filled with warm and moving shadows. Down in the foreground green oaks stood still and comforted me. A little white house hid itself in the shadow of those great trees. High above where the hills met the sky, a great cloud raced across the canvas. But there was something in the canvas that I could not isolate; a beauty there that I could not take apart. But here I could see that a man had done something greater than himself. It was beautiful.

A man who knew the artist came by. And curious to know more I asked him about the man who had done this thing.

He told me that the artist was a miserable fellow. He had weaknesses stronger than himself. He was a drunkard. He was malicious. He was envious and quarrelsome. He fought with his friends, hated humanity, could not be trusted, had vicious habits.

I said: "This painting is beautiful."

Still curious I asked for more and my friend gave it all to me. . . . The artist was a liar. He was a thief. He couldn't be trusted. He stole other men's ideas and was enormously envious. He was lazy. . . . But he was a great painter. He loved beauty wherever he found it. Weak in character, he was strong in his love of the fair earth. In the presence of the great hills, with a canvas before him, he was a man magnified. And though his life was desolate in so many ways, it was rich and fruitful when he was doing the thing he could do best of all. A hypocrite in so many ways, this thing alone he did not betray.

So I repeated to myself: "This part of him is beautiful—and who am I to weigh the weakness and the pitiful qualities of this man against the beauty he can put onto canvas? He is not entirely lost; by this at least he is saved—and this beauty is enough for me."

Was I right or wrong? Though we stumble and fall and crawl in the gutter; though we dream of heaven and live in hell, are we saved by the few fair and perfect things we do, or does our weakness wreck it all?

Lawrence Says OWI Withholds Too Many Facts

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 17.—When Elmer Davis, of the Office of War Information, said that many important phases of the war effort were inadequately reported, he was really discussing a subject that has long puzzled others, too.

Thus many leaders of industry have felt that the remarkable job done by management in this war in expanding a hundred-fold has been inadequately reported.

Leaders of labor have felt that the production job could not have been accomplished without the wonderful energy displayed by the workers, and that this has been inadequately reported.

Public officials, harassed from morning to night by a thousand and one problems and by multifarious responsibilities, see their work as significant and constructive but inadequately reported.

Members of the minority in Congress, who have pointed out serious mistakes and are constantly calling attention to grave abuses of power, feel that their remarks are inadequately reported.

Congressmen, too

Members of Congress of both political parties, who have worked long, tedious hours on legislation much of which is not sensational or spectacular but nevertheless vital to the war effort, feel that their work has been inadequately reported.

Then there's the question of emphasis. Elmer Davis says too much attention is given by the correspondents here to the feuds and squabbles between government officials, and that there are other things worth far more space. Experience has shown, however, that friction between officials sometimes has a deeper meaning than a clash of personalities. When officials air their disputes in the press, it is often the result of some fundamental conflict in governmental policy.

Reporters are not permitted as a rule to know about these fundamental questions. The necessity for suppression on the ground that the enemy might benefit from information has been used to keep reporters from getting at the facts. Hence if officials quarrel, it means that policies are clashing, too.

Conflicts, chiefly

Then there is the internal war in Washington which Mr. Davis and many others of us would like to forget and even gloss over if that were possible. Many disputes and bickerings aren't just the reaching out of ambitious officials for power. They are often the conflict of left-wing and right-wing philosophies.

In many governmental agencies there are radicals who feel they must keep watch on conservatives. Thus the needling of the idea of having businessmen in office here has been going on ever since the war started. Likewise, a considerable amount of secret reporting about one's superior to persons higher up goes on all the time. The White House gets reports about what is going on in various governmental agencies, and some of this isn't transmitted through the regular channels.

If President Roosevelt established one simple rule—namely, that he wouldn't listen to or read communications of criticism sent by subordinates about their superiors—he would end overnight much of the squabbling and intrigue in Washington.

Ideal for Politicians

What Elmer Davis is asking for is the ideal situation for the politician in power, in which the constructive things done so far outweigh the mistakes that reporters would forgive and forget the errors and actually ignore them. But representative government, composed as it is of persons of different viewpoints, inevitably brings a critical press, and it has always been a newspaper tendency to pay more attention to sensational divorce cases than to happy marriages.

As for treatment of those who do make mistakes and commit errors in the handling of public business, the tendency is always to emphasize the error. Thus labor leaders would

New Deal Supreme Court Runs Around In Circles and Causes Many Chuckles

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The supreme court is running around in legal circles which seem to devolve deeper and deeper.

The confusion of law which has been engendered by its hard fought, close decisions first caused weary head-shaking in the legal profession. Now it is getting chuckles.

What would have happened if FDR's court-packing bill had been adopted, and he had appointed fifteen justices instead of seven, is an interesting thought to toy with. Justice then probably would have been meted out 8 to 7.

On some legally confusing occasions, the court has ruled that what it decided was justice a short time ago is no longer constitutional, but the opposite is.

In a Pennsylvania school case in 1940, it held (8 to 1) school children could be required to salute the flag, but, in a West Virginia case, it reversed itself (8 to 3) and decreed the opposite.

Reversals Frequent

It has unpleasantly held rocketing is a crime for all citizens unless they belong to a labor union, and has now (5 to 4) given the Federal Communications Commission the right to determine the contents of radio programs (possibly also of what goes over wires to newspapers).

Frequently, it has denied petitions for reviews and then, on a re-hearing petition, reversed itself and granted reviews.

The only explanation is that this 7 to 2 New Deal court is volatile and changeable. Apparently, some justices will even vote one way in conference and then, on reflection, change sides.

The other day in a narcotics case, the written opinion announced dissents by two justices. But when reporters inquired for the dissenting opinions, they were informed no dissents had been filed.

The court may have been reformed politically, but legally, it is now more in need of reform than before.

The McKellar Bill

The McKellar bill whopped its way fast through the Senate upon the wings of expectation that it would break up the Frankfurter-Mrs. Roosevelt-Hopkins monopoly over New Deal patronage, but it is not likely to bring that result any time soon.

For one thing, the bill must now pass the House, and the House members were left entirely out of the McKellar plan of awarding good government jobs (above $4,500 a year). The bill requires Senate confirmation of such appointees.

In practice, it would therefore cause Mr. Roosevelt to ascertain whether appointees are acceptable to senators from the same locality as the appointees. The whole Senate would be given the opportunity to turn down appointees whose chief claim to fame and experience is a Harvard law degree, or a career of working in some social service.

Also, such officials now holding jobs would hereafter have to be more polite to senators and refrain from arousing their ire in any matter of government policy. These would be the practical effects of the legislation.

General feeling against the typical New Dealer in office is stronger in the House than in the Senate, but the chances of the bill's passing the lower chamber are obviously impeded by the Senate assumption of authority in this patronage matter for itself. The House would get none of the gravy, this naturally lessens its interest in the McKellar reform.

A fair, objective analysis would insist that Mr. Roosevelt's fears that the bill would break down the civil service system are unfounded, as it specifically is not to apply to any civil service appointee or anyone in the White House or FBI.

Different if Not Better

From the standpoint of altruism, a standpoint from which no one on any side around here is looking at the proposal, the bill might not make appointments any better, but it would certainly make them different.

Basically, it would just give the senators' friends a chance, which now is exclusively restricted to Roosevelt's friends. The friends of senators might not be much more astute, but they certainly would wear a different social tie.

More important, Mr. Roosevelt would veto the bill, and it could not pass over a veto in either house. But the existing patronage situation will no doubt continue to the end of time or Roosevelt, whichever occurs first.

Coddling The Japs

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

Disclosures from the Dies committee of the sorry state of administration of the Japanese re-location center at Poston, Ariz., should be sufficient to force a drastic shake-up in the whole personnel of the Japanese re-location agency. This is not the first time the country has had word that all is not well in the western camps where Japanese of doubtful loyalty are held. Other disclosures have been heard from time to time which indicate strongly that we have either adopted a soft-headed policy toward these charges or else the administration personnel is unfit for its job.

Keeping tabs on several thousand Japanese, many of whom make no secret of their loyalty to their Emperor and their abiding conviction in a Japanese conquest of the American continent, is a dangerous business. It is a task of riding herd on a potential fifth column which the country has conveniently gathered together in concentration areas whereas formerly it was dispersed in many cities.

The stories of Japs who had cached food and supplies for an expected invasion of the Pacific coast and the accounts of sit-down strikes by the internees are not likely to be lightly dismissed by the authorities. In dealing with these people, it is not entirely human to suggest that Japan herself indulges in very little nonsense in dealing with American nationals imprisoned in her territories. The authorities are numerous for that statement. It might be an appropriate time for this country to quit trying to go out of its way in coddling the Jap and really get tough.

Byrnes and Baruch Make Good Team, C. P. Stewart Says

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

As unsalaried but chief adviser to Director James F. Byrnes of the recently-created Office of War Mobilization, 72-year-old Bernard M. Baruch, whose organizing ability was an important factor in winning the last world conflict, had not been in his new job for many hours before supplying Jimmy with a bit of advice that all hands agree couldn't have been improved on.

What Barney recommended was an immediate cessation of the "internal bickering" among bureaucratic heads and their subordinates, to the accompaniment of grave interference with our effort and almost hopeless public confusion.

Just why it was necessary to call in Baruch to furnish this bit of information is not so apparent, however.

Realized by Byrnes

Jimmy Byrnes undoubtedly knew it already. Baruch may furnish him with suggestions for disciplining his turbulent subordinates, but it is altogether unlikely that the former is unaware of the wangling's prevalence.

There not only is squabbling between bureaucrats but also between representatives and senators. It is not improbable, indeed, that Mobilization Director Byrnes has disputes to settle faster than he can handle them and needs a partner of the Byrnes caliber to take care of the overflow. Baruch, popular, too. Backed by Boss Byrnes, and, overhead, by Super-Boss Roosevelt, he can be firm, but he likewise is diplomatic and persuasive.

Would Shape Taxation

Incidentally, Director Byrnes's plan is to take a hand in the shaping of war taxation policies and Baruch is a tax expert.

Jimmy wants to consolidate his executive negotiations with a couple of congressional committees—one in the senate, one in the house of representatives. It will require an executive team to deal with both of them. This span of committees will have to be created. Jimmy and Barney will divide the task between them.

Baruch already is on record to the effect that there must not be too many appeals to the White House from the Mobilization Office's rulings.

This shows Barney's foresightedness.

Jimmy cannot very well say that HE must not be appealed from.

Is Independent

Barney, though, unsalaried and untitled, can speak like an ordinary citizen.

He is as independent as a hog-on-ice, anyway.

He would not have done for Jimmy's new job; he is too old. Nevertheless, he is not old enough to have lost his significance.

Jimmy denies that he is an aspirant for the vice presidential nomination in 1944. It is a good guess on his part, unquestioned. I do not say that he could not be elected on a ticket with Franklin D. Roosevelt, but it would not be desirable for him to be nominated initially. He will make too many enemies.

Jimmy Byrnes may be eligible in 1948—if HE is not too old then, too. He will be, though.

Roosevelt and Wallace

The betting is 10-to-1, at least, next time—Roosevelt and Wallace, on the Democratic ticket. There can be some G. O. P. gambling. As between the two parties (excluding them as of today) I know who I am staking on.

Jimmy Byrnes, however, has declared himself.

Anyway, he is due to offend so many groups shortly that eliciting him to any old job will be as impossible in the reasonably near future. After which, he will be too ancient for consideration.

Yet, he will be awful important in the meantime.

Bernard is of no consequence, temporarily. Yet he will have a lot to do with temporary economies.

Shoplifting Is On the Increase Among Children

Parents Urged To Train Youngsters To Respect Others' Rights

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.
In widely scattered centers of population throughout our nation, I have been talking with mayors, heads of police departments, judges of juvenile courts, welfare workers and school authorities about delinquent children and youths and I have participated in conferences and discussions on the subject. Moreover, like yourself, I have been reading the papers.

Among the things one learns is that children, especially those over 10 or 12 are more often late at school or absent; more of them are left at home or on the street while both parents are away by day or night; more children under 12 or 14 are pilfering or mutilating property; more of them out after dark. More girls from 10 to 14 are violating common social conventions, frequenting places where other boys or men congregate, with the obvious consequence. There are more children with fabulous amounts of money on their person; more parents who either don't try to control and protect their children or who say they can't.

Shoplifting among Children
From all I can gather, this moral disintegration is occurring at all social, economic and educational levels, with the rate of increase, apparently, higher at the higher levels.

As one example, a police chief in a very comfortable residential suburb, told me recently that shoplifting had doubled in that city in two years. Practically none of the offenders stole because of poverty. Pilfering by children in stores has been appallingly prevalent for some years, throughout the nation. Just one of the products of the doctrine that children should not be disciplined by restraints lest their personalities be warped.

MR. DAN J. PIERCE, Mgr.

Over six years, I have been asking at the neighborhood stores in the choicest economic areas of cities and suburbs throughout the United States about youngsters from 5 to 13 who come in there unaccompanied by their parents. Practically everywhere the response has been, "They are terrible. Either they snatch things or render them unsalable." Some clerks have added, "When I call up the parent to complain I lose a good customer."

While you and I regret the loss of the merchant, our chief concern is the loss to the character of these children.
Let me entreat good parents to strive harder to train their children in early years to respect the rights and possessions of others.
Solving Parent Problems
Q. I wonder if you could give me some advice on how to help my baby play with other children.
A. As soon as your child can toddle, get him with other children about his age, one at a time for a while, more later. The nursery school, even the infants department of the Sunday school affords good opportunity for group contacts. But do not expect much cooperation with other children at play for a few years. Only gradually does social interest and ability grow. So long as one child does not endanger another let them alone to work out their own problems of social adjustment, except to persuade them to take turns and the like.

Q. Do you have any special help for parents on fears in children of school age?
A. Yes; I have a special bulletin on fears covering various ages, to be had without cost to you by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York city, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Poultry Lice and Mites Reduce Egg Production

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 16.—Poultry lice and mites, two saboteurs which can do a lot to prevent maximum summer egg production by farm flocks, should be effectively controlled as a part of the state's war time food program, J. B. Smith says.

Smith, assistant extension poultryman of West Virginia university, contended that "every poultryman in the state who wants his birds to lay more eggs this year than ever before" should take steps to curb the pests.

Body lice are the most common type found on chickens, he pointed out, and recommended dusting each bird thoroughly with sodium fluo-ride as an effective method of controlling them.

Another effective method of control, he added, is to paint the roost poles of the hen house with a forty per cent solution of nicotine sulfate half an hour before roosting time.

No Pay for Husband Who Avoids Wife

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The boss doesn't have to pay a chap who hangs around his job just to escape the little woman's wrath—so in effect says a recent ruling by the eastern division of the Tennessee Court of Appeals.

Affirming a chancery decision denying a claimant overtime under the Wages and Hours Act, the Court declared that he had stayed overtime at his Sunbright, Tenn., lumber mill job "not in the interest of his employer but to escape domestic friction."

London Offices Safe From Enemy Raids

LONDON (AP)—Enemy air raids, no matter how severe, cannot affect the work of any government office in London now. "Shadow" offices, officially described as "crash buildings," fitted with a switchboard, thousands of telephones and miles of wire, are ready of instant occupation in various parts of Britain.

The General Post Office has built special telephone exchanges in reserve for essential government services in the provinces, and many important public exchanges have been duplicated. Other safeguards include the accumulation of large reserves of cable along main trunk routes, and provision of mobile automatic exchanges at strategic points.

Separation May Help Make War Marriage Stick

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Copyright, 1943, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

They were whirling around on the floor of a U. S. O. dance. The boys were in uniform. The girls in their brightly colored frocks were like a blossoming border, along a garden path. It was a lovely sight. You could see by the way these youngsters looked at each other, that Cupid had scored heavily.

lovely pictures of brides and grooms and wedding bells and announcements of engagements for weddings to come. As I watched this crowd dancing, perhaps I said something sentimental to the old bachelor who was sitting beside me.

"In a year or two they'll all be getting divorces," he replied.

"And why should they be getting divorces?" I asked.

In Love with Love

"Because they're in love with love, with life, and the boys are going off to war, and the combination is too much for human nature. Youngsters who marry under that sort of pressure wind up in Reno."

"I don't believe you," I said, and continued to watch the charming young creatures who danced spiritedly and carefree, just as youngsters danced before the Battle of Waterloo.

And I hoped that despite separations necessitated by war, they would naturally develop qualities which make marriage a success. I wished for the girls if they had to take jobs in defense plants, they'd keep their womanliness; it's proverbial if a girl does, she keeps her man. If she has neither beauty nor brains, I hoped that the boys they'd adore would not, because of the adoration their uniform wins them, become out-and-out philanderers, chasing every pretty face which crosses their paths. And I hoped that when the fighting is at an end, the boys would come home, sane, sober and healthy, and have the ability to make a decent living for a family, even if their wives decided to keep their jobs for a time at least.

every child brings his or her own special joy to the home into which he is born. And in the re-education of the world to come, we need children from good, clean homes to carry on.

No, I didn't agree with my old friend; he's a bachelor anyhow and what he feels about boys he's never experienced, doesn't count. It's not the old bachelors who are going to carry on when the signal "Cease Firing" is given.

Mother Takes Daughter's Beau

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I'm a girl of 19 years in love with a boy of 19. Six months ago he and I went together, and he told me he loved me. But I did not return the feeling and told him so. We drifted apart and he continued to come over, but on a more impersonal basis. We haven't gone out together for two months.

In the meantime he has been coming over about three times a week, but not to see me. He's interested in my mother, who is really very pretty and is often taken for my sister. She also is attracted to this boy, much to the distress of my father and me. Mother and this young man have exchanged pictures with very personal autographs written on them. He has given her his class ring and pin, of which I know he is very fond. They have eyes only for each other, and father and I are merely outsiders when he is at the house.

Please, Miss Fairfax, help us. Everyone else seems to know about my mother and the boy, but, they don't seem to know what a scandal they are causing.

Love has a way of making people "leave the rails." They become emotionally sunk in some affair which spells disaster for all parties concerned. I've known of dozens of cases similar to the one of which you write me, and they've all resulted in tragedy. What's to be expected with such a disparity of years and the possible mother-in-law turned into wife?

The only thing for which you can hope and pray is that your mother will see the dangers into which she is heading. Love cannot thrive on ridicule, and while the romance may seem to the two involved as made in Heaven, to their relations, friends, neighbors and the world at large it's just comic. Ridicule is a powerful social weapon. It often succeeds when common sense fails, if principals are made aware of it.

Nerves, Either Sensory or Motor, Control Muscles or Carry Impulses

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., ly and am pleased to make herewith an explanation. The nervous system is an all-pervading structure which consists of a series of successively higher centers until we reach the part of the brain which has to do with thought and which controls personality. When this part of a person becomes disturbed, it is not easy to find a single word for the condition; it may affect some one way and others another way.

But a most convenient term is "nerves"; this applies to people who are apprehensive, who are restless, the people who never can sit still, those who are always making purposeless motions, as well as those who exaggerate the importance of minor events and possibly minimize the importance of major events. In other words, those who cannot obtain a fair perspective in regard to the events of life and are constantly maladjusted for that reason. Of course, it also applies to hysterical individuals.

Another word for the condition is neurasthenia, although this is going out of general use in medical terminology. It used to mean a tired nervous system, but as a matter of fact, most individuals to whom the term used to be applied are simply maladjusted.

When symptoms which arise from these personality disorders and maladjustments are present, it isn't fair to say that they are mental cases and it gives a wrong impression. It isn't entirely fair to say that they are emotional. If I used the word "functional," I do not believe many of my readers would understand, so I compromise by using the word "nerves."

Two Kinds of Nerves

Now the nerves, structurally speaking, are the terminal branches, cords of the nervous system, which go out from the base of the brain and the spinal column. There are two kinds of these nerves: one is motor—those which control muscles. When such a nerve, for instance the ulnar nerve in the arm, is severed or injured, there is a paralysis of the nerve in the hand, which it supplies. This is the condition to which I usually refer as neuritis. It is not a very good term because it indicates an inflammation of a nerve, and actually may be an injury. But it is so used in medical nomenclature.

Sensory Nerves

The other set of nerves is sensory. They carry impulses from the surface of the body—the skin—to the respective centers in the brain. These nerves carry impulses of touch, temperature, pain and sense of position. And the commonest disorder of these nerves is the recording of senses of pain without any adequate reason for it.

When you have a boil on the skin, or an inflammation of any kind, or a fracture of a bone, the sensory nerves carry impulses of pain, and quite properly: there is a reason for it; the impulse is protective. But in cases where there is no condition at the nerve terminus which we can find which would cause pain, we call it neuralgia. Any "algia" is pain. Neuralgia is a term meaning the pain is due to an irritation of the nerve. This is as exact as it can be made because we do not know anything about the cause of a neuralgia, such as a facial neuralgia.

Questions and Answers

H. B.—Are men with high blood pressure accepted in the army? If a man has served in the army and acquired high blood pressure, will he be released?

Answer: Applicants with high blood pressure are not accepted in the army. If it can be proved that the high blood pressure was the result of army duty, the soldier will be honorably discharged in the line of duty.

C. P.—Is there a cure for goiter other than operation?

Answer: Only a small proportion of goiters require operation; most of them get along very well on medical treatment.

E. H.—A little girl 4 years old has a left eye crossed. It has been noticed by the parents only for about six months, but others say they have noticed it before. Some neighbors say if glasses are put on her she will have to wear them all her life; some neighbors say the eye can be put in place by rubbing. Is this true?

Answer: These cases are adjusted by glasses to the extent that the person can see all right, but are never cured by glasses alone. Therefore the statement that if they start wearing glasses they will have to wear them for the rest of their life is true. Rubbing does no good, in fact, is harmful. The only permanent cure is by a slight operation on the muscles of the eye, which should be done by an oculist.

E. B.—What is the cause of the disease, encephalitis? What are the symptoms and is there any cure for it?

Answer: Encephalitis is caused by a germ; it affects the cells of the brain. The common name for it is sleeping sickness, because the most prominent symptom in most cases is a deep sleep amounting to coma. Most of the patients get well.

Farming's the Life

BECKLEY, W. Va., June 16 (AP)—Former Sheriff Isalah Kidd, now a farmer at Union in Monroe county, is of the opinion that "farming's the life". Kidd declared on a recent visit to Beckley that farmers aren't getting nearly as much money as people think, "even though they can make a living now while they were just existing before". He pointed out that most of the money for food is distributed among grocers, wholesalers, truckmen, railroads, commission merchants, speculators, tax collectors and others, and the farmer gets "his fingers on only a few pennies out of each dollar". But he told friends that he gets the same thrill out of raising a prize steer as he did in catching a criminal when he was sheriff from 1924 to 1928.

Medieval Persians used to wager a finger or even an arm on the outcome of a chess game; the loser would lop off the lost member and cauterize the wound in ointment kept handy.

The Bolivian president serves a four-year term, and is not eligible for re-election until eight years after his term ends.

Retail Deliveries Of Small Packages Sharply Curtailed

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP)—Retail delivery of small packages in the Eastern gasoline shortage area have been curtailed.

The Office of Defense Transportation (ODT) has prohibited retail delivery of packages which measure less than sixty inches in combined length and girth or weigh less than five pounds, but made exceptions for milk, bread and other bakery products, eggs, fruits and vegetables, meat, poultry, laundry and dry cleaning, medical supplies and repair parts.

ODT said the restriction was necessary "to make certain that the limited supply of gasoline in the East is used only for necessary transportation." The order applies to the eastern area where non-essential automobile driving is prohibited.

Transcontinental air service was inaugurated in Canada in 1939 when the first planes took off on flights of 3,500 miles.

Mountain Lake Park Will Hold Election July 13

Dr. C. Oscar Hall, Present Mayor, Will Not Be Candidate for Re-election

OAKLAND, June 17.—Mountain Lake Park is preparing for its municipal election on Tuesday, July 13, at which a mayor and five councilmen will be chosen.

The other three members of council, Mrs. George Dawson, Mrs. Mary Coffin-daffer and Alfred Calhoun, will have completed two-year terms.

Just how many councilmen will be candidates for re-election was not announced but Hervey Bittner announced as a candidate for mayor. All candidates for office must file their petitions on or before Wednesday, June 23. The town clerk will be in the city hall on Friday, June 18, and Tuesday, June 22, from 7 to 8 p. m., to receive petitions.

Roundtable Shows

1. A complete sanitary sewerage system for the Bedford road section, preliminary and location surveys for which have been completed.

2. A duplicate water transmission line from the impounding reservoirs to the city. These surveys, Conlon said, are now under way and about sixty per cent finished.

3. Construction of a 100 per cent increase in the filtration beds for the city water supply, to bring the capacity up to 24,000,000 gallons daily.

4. Construction of a sewage disposal plant, land surveys and plans for which have been prepared.

5. An adequate flood control project on which important steps have been taken, including the creation of a municipal planning commission, which has this as its chief objective.

City officials are planning the addition of several minor projects, the mayor stated, including "improvement to traffic which will demand the construction of certain railroad crossing eliminations and probably a cross-town viaduct; at least one additional bridge crossing Willis creek; the development of the bed of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal into a boulevard leading from the North to the South End and furnishing a splendid approach to the airport, and the widening and relocation of certain thoroughfares."

The necessity for continuing the system of private enterprise was emphasized in the case of the railroads by Roy W. Eves who deprecated the proposal of the National Resources Planning Board to nationalize these carriers. The railroads have proved more than equal to every test occasioned by the war situation, he said, and they will be in better position than ever before to meet postwar obligations by reason of improved facilities, a sounder financial structure increased efficiency and enhanced public good will.

Thomas E. Gilchrist was scheduled for one of the discussions but as he was called out of town a paper prepared by him was read by Edward R. Allen.

Gives Business Man's Views
Gilchrist approached the subject from the viewpoint of the small businessman, whose future must, he said, not be blotted out and whose existence will depend upon the continuation of the free enterprise system. He recounted the opportunities facing these small businessmen here, particularly with respect to house construction. A thousand homes costing from $5,000 upward will be needed here when the war ends, Gilchrist stated, and this immediate spending of $5,000,000 will provide much work in various channels of trade. Teamwork, which has been demonstrated, will win the war, he said, as it is helping to win the war.

Utility concerns will be ready to meet postwar demands, according to Henry W. Price, as they have plans under way for them. This is usually a going business with them, it was noted, as they are constantly obliged to increase facilities to meet normal growth. But a vast field of improvement will be opened up by the postwar period, owing to the wartime deprivations resulting from priorities, and the utilities will play an important part in them. New types of housing, improved heating, lighting, ventilating and plumbing facilities and a multitude of new household appliances will call for increased demands on electric and like utilities. Price said, and the utilities are now planning to meet this increased demand.

Piper Discusses Financing
The important matter of financing all this work and expansion was discussed by Charles A. Piper, bank president. The most important thing, he declared, will be the maintenance of a good government credit, else the country will plunge into chaos. There must be thoughtful study and care with regard to the national debt and the national income, Piper said.

Conditions are entirely different now than in the last war and following it, Piper said, particularly with regard to available capital through controlled interest rates. There must be a high national income because of the large public debt, now around 140 billions and probably going anywhere from 250 to 300 billions when the war ends. Private enterprise with useful public and private works and no boondoggling was held a prime essential. Marvelous opportunities are involved in the postwar period with proper planning, Piper said, with a huge consumer demand coming

CLICKS RIGHT OFF

JIM TYACK, rookie outfielder brought up by Connie Mack from Little Rock of the Southern association, is clicking as a major leaguer. In the A's double win over the Yanks last Sunday, Tyack banged out five hits in seven times at bat, driving all three of the Phillys runs in the second game.

FOR THE GAME'S SAKE

NEW YORK, June 16. — Bill Nicholson of the Cubs keeps on getting bingles, two-baggers and so forth. The fact, however, that he has suffered a relapse in home-run hitting, as suddenly as his mighty upsurge with the bludgeon late last month, does not detract from the miraculous quality of a sudden bating flurry that stands without precedent in either league this season. It came out of nowhere. Prior to May 30 Big Nick had not hit a single home run and it is a curious fact that no fellow player on his club had fared any better. The team did not know what a circuit clout of its own making looked like.

But on Sunday, May 30, the Cubs developed a proprietary knowledge of distance wallpops when Nick helped himself to two titanic swats, following up next day with one in each game of a double-header. In those three games he batted in ten runs, it having happened that each of his blows found one or more players on the bases. Later, having added another home to his galaxy, Nick subsided from gigantic endeavor into the garnering of humble base hits and only an occasional display of might. Why that fine frenzy lasted month? Nicholson cannot explain it any more than anyone can explain any sort of phenomenal occurrence.

Well, Vanderbilt has retired from intercollegiate football for the duration. Was there ever such a letdown in ambitious enterprise? Easterners saw Vanderbilt back in 1940 when the eleven came to Princeton and met defeat. It was just a mediocre gridiron outfit then. But least of all were the Tigers aware of conditions brewing in Nashville. They found that out the next season when they journeyed to the beautiful Vanderbilt campus for a return game and were walloped, 47-0, by a team as different from the 1940 edition as Count Meft differs from a truck horse.

It will be recalled that Princeton alumni held their national football gathering in Nashville that year and the football game was to be one of the high lights of the occasion. It turned out to be a high light all right—so far as Vandy was concerned. Tad Wileman, the Princeton coach, raised his brows. The Commodores were so very good, so replete with manpower, as to lead to suspicion that natural inclination of football players to attend this institution was not a reasonable explanation. Henry (Russ) Sanders, the coach, shrugged. He was sorry that Old Nassau had run into what it had run into. So were the Vandy authorities, but football was football and South was South and so—well, what have you?

But now all preparations for a Dixie championship have gone by the board. The Commodores follow Florida, Mississippi State and Ole Miss in dropping out of gridiron competition. Still, Alabama, Auburn, Georgia, Tech, Kentucky, Louisiana State, Tennessee and Tulane remain to uphold the prestige of the Southeastern Conference.

Showing how things are going these days, behold the fact that Rex Whitworth of Bramhall, England, a track star who holds a degree from Cambridge university, now a Rockefeller Foundation medical student at the University of Iowa, has by Big Ten vote, been made eligible for varsity competition in the organization.

Of Count Fleet a well-known trainer remarks: "He is too high in the front and tails off in the rear. On his looks, if I saw him in a group of twenty-five pretty good racers I would not give him even a nod—on his looks." Well, if this be true—and some competent judges of horse flesh disagree—the Mrs. Herts stallion is not the first thoroughbred which would not get a nod among lesser steeds. Same, too, may be said for more than one outstanding human athlete who could be named. It is not hey you look. It is what you do.

Too Much Parly

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—For the first few runnings of the Astoria Stakes—it then was known as the Astoria Dinner Stakes—the owner of the winner had to be host at a party at the old Waldorf Astoria in New York. The custom was discontinued because the dinner lasted so many days.

FBI Quarterly Police Meeting Set for June 24

Milo W. Gray, Steel Company Safety Director, Will Speak

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 17.—Milo W. Gray, safety director of the Weirton Steel Company, will be the principal speaker at an FBI quarterly police conference to be held in the Hampshire county office building, Romney, June 24.

The conference, one of seven to be held in the state, is sponsored by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to weld together all law enforcement agencies to combat espionage, sabotage and subversive activities of all kinds.

E. E. Kuehn, special agent in charge of FBI work in West Virginia, will open the conference and will conduct an open forum on police problems such as runaway children, placing wanted notices for fugitives, priorities on guns and ammunition, locating selective service fugitives and uniform crime reports.

The afternoon session will open with a report by Frank D. Stanton, special agent, on the "inside story" of the apprehension of Carl Straka who was captured April 23 at Tiltonsville, Ohio by FBI agents. Milo W. Gray, who gives the chief talk of the session, will trace the history of the safety movement since 1900, and will discuss the increase of accidents which followed Pearl Harbor and point out how the present decrease has been secured through an organized safety program.

Four confidential war films will also be shown at the meeting. The films will show some of the atrocities practiced by the Nazis in Poland and the movement of munitions and equipment to England and the importance of safety precautions in industrial plants to prevent sabotage.

Garland and Heflin Star in Musical

Litling melodies mingle with comedy and a haunting love story in "Presenting Lily Mars," which brings Judy Garland to the Maryland theater, where she is appearing in one of the most intriguing roles of her career. Judy is teamed not with another singing star but with a polished dramatic actor in the person of Van Heflin.

The story is engaging. It deals with a young girl who wants to become a musical comedy star, a producer who cannot see her possibilities, and the various complications that follow when the very resolute young lady sets out to show him the error of his ways.

Judy "crashes" a party, insists on acting Shakespeare for the impresario, manages to get his prima donna insanely jealous but finally wins out, takes her place in the spotlight—and wins a husband.

O'Connor Hailed As Outstanding Player

A new movie star won the approval and applause of audiences yesterday at the Liberty theater, where Universal's comedy musical, "Mister Big," had its initial local showing. The star is young Donald O'Connor, singing, dancing, versatile juvenile who has attracted widespread attention with his amazing talents and likeable personality.

The new film is made to order for young O'Connor. He performs in a dozen different characterizations, each one a good show in itself.

Gloria Jean and Peggy Ryan hold top spots in the cast and with O'Connor, form an extraordinary screen trio. The three present eight special tunes written by Buddy Pepper and Inez James.

"Mister Big," the story of a five-year-old kid determined to sing and dance, but handicapped by a classical School of the Theatre, is one of the breeziest items

Zany Actor Gets Top Spot in Film

Film extra, Keystone Comedy Cop, feature director, and character comedian—Slim Summerville has been all of these in his long and adventurous career in the motion picture business. Principally famous for his lugubrious face and long stooped figure, Slim also made his mark as a serious actor. In "All Quiet On The Western Front," he scored a tremendous hit as the unforgettable "Jaden."

However, comedy has been his forte, and he is starred in Hal Roach's latest comedy, "Niagara Falls," now showing at the Embassy theater, through United Artists release. Slim is a newly rich old man, who finally marries after a courtship of twenty years. And the blushing bride, believe it or not, is Zasu Pitts.

Gene Autry Opens At Garden Theater

Gene Autry is starred in "Sierra Sue," opening today at the Garden theater. A Western with much action and a fine musical score, it is one of the popular star's best efforts. Smiley Burnette, Fay McKenzie and Jack Kirk are included in the cast.

The co-feature at the Garden today is "Junior Army," starring Freddie Bartholomew, Billy Halop and Bobby Jordan.

The fourth chapter of "Smilin' Jack" rounds out the program.

Small Homes To Get More Fuel Oil

NEW YORK, June 17 (AP)—Joel Dean, OPA fuel rationing division director, states that small eastern seaboard homes automatically will get large fuel oil rations under a revamped program for next year.

He told fuel oil dealers and industry representatives from the Metropolitan area in a joint conference with OPA officials that homes in zones A1 and A2 (Eastern seaboard) containing 600 square feet would benefit by recalculation through use of a simplified table. He did not explain the table.

In general, however, Dean said, exception those modifications in rations for smaller homes, the fuel oil allotments would be issued to consumers next year on last year's basis.

Dean described another feature of the revamped program, which he termed ration banking. He said a consumer whose ration was between 20,000 and 50,000 gallons annually would receive his allotment in the form of a fuel oil deposit certificate, adding that the "rationing bank account" would be mandatory for the consumer using more than 50,000 gallons annually.

Cincinnati Hands Cardinals Second Defeat in a Row

Elmer Riddle Holds World Champions to Five Hits; Score 6 to 1

ST. LOUIS, June 17 (AP)—Manager Billy Southworth of the St. Louis Cardinals, who picks the spots for pitcher Howard Egan, chose a tough one today for the tall right-hander, who was beaten 6 to 1 by the Cincinnati Reds.

It was only the fifth defeat of Egan's Major League career against twenty-nine victories. He came to the Cardinals in 1941 and has been a remarkable relief pitcher, starting only occasionally. He has won three games this season.

The defeat was the Cardinals' second in a row at the hands of the Reds, marking the first time they had suffered two consecutive reverses in exactly a month. However, the loss meant nothing so far as their National League lead was concerned since the Brooklyn Dodgers also were beaten.

Elmer Riddle, pitching for Cincinnati, held the Cardinals to five hits, one of them a run-producing single by Sanders in the fourth inning, breaking the first baseman's string of twenty-three hitless trips to the plate.

Gee Walker led the Reds' attack with a double and two singles, one of them against relief pitcher Murry Dickson with the bases loaded in the ninth inning.

Roundtable Shows Cumberland Plans For Postwar Era Are Well in Hand

Speakers at Commerce Chamber Gathering Hopeful about Local and National Outlook

Two important points about the postwar situation were brought out with considerable emphasis last evening at a roundtable discussion of the general subject at the Central Y. M. C. A.

One indicated that plans are much further along than a good many persons have perhaps realized; the other disclosed a profound belief that our national welfare in the days following the war depends chiefly upon the preservation of the system of free enterprise as it has been developed in America.

The roundtable was arranged by the Postwar Planning committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce for members of the chamber and their guests. Approximately seventy-five attended and gave close attention to the discussions, which followed a dinner.

Six Angles Presented

Six different angles of the postwar period were tackled by as many speakers, all members of the committee, after George L. Buchanan, chamber president, turned the meeting over to Edmund S. Burke, committee chairman.

Opening the discussions, Burke cited statistics on production and man power to show that it will be necessary to formulate now sound and constructive programs of work for the period both for the purpose of easing the national economy in making the great transition from war to peace and of providing the jobs which will be sought and needed by the millions who return from the fighting forces.

Accumulated savings and a vast consumer demand, Burke said, will be important factors in coping with the new era. Cumberland will be in excellent condition for meeting opportunities of the situation, he said, because it has fortunately escaped war boom conditions. There must not only be wise and thoughtful planning, and plans must be designed to meet specific conditions, but free enterprise, which has proved itself equal to wartime demands, beyond all comparison with the record of governments which have surrendered it, must be preserved if the nation is to escape economic chaos and disaster.

Fair Break Needed

All private enterprise needs, Burke declared, is a fair break with taxes that are not confiscatory. There will be necessary have to be public works, he said, but these must be useful.

Pointing out that Cumberland is one of the first cities in the United States to begin preparations for postwar work, Mayor Thomas P. Conlon revealed that a comprehensive program of municipal improvements is already under way on which surveys have begun and are partially completed. The entire program is being worked out from day to day in efforts to have things ready for a good start when the war ends, it was stated.

The program includes five principal projects of considerable magnitude:

CELANESE EXPECTS FULL OPERATION BY END OF WEEK

With the work of reconstruction and rehabilitation well up to schedule, the Celanese corporation is expected to be operating under a full schedule by the end of next week, Fred T. Small, plant manager, said last night.

Of the three blocks seriously damaged in the explosion June 3, one full spinning block has been working since the first of this week. According to Small, another half block is to resume operation Sunday and Monday, with the plant returning to full production by Friday or Saturday of next week.

Edward R. Allan, personnel director, stated that the rate of employee recall will have a constant increase from now on, and he estimates that half of those out at the present time will be called back by the early part of next week.

Small said that contrary to expectation, the rehabilitation has been accomplished in almost record time and a fine job of it has been done. Instead of three months generally estimated, here as necessary for the reconstruction, approximately only three weeks have been necessary, he added.

Knight was found dead about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, his body against the running board of his car on a rural road, three miles north of Everett.

Authorities said considerable blood was found at the scene and added that marks indicated that Knight either crawled or had been dragged around his car, but an autopsy performed yesterday revealed he died from a heart attack. He had been undergoing medical treatment for some time.

Knight taught hundreds of music students in Bedford county and directed the national championship junior band here.

Red Cross Does Not Make Charge For Assistance

There has been a mistaken idea on the part of some persons that when assistance is given to the families of service men by the American Red Cross that deductions are taken from the allotment checks of the service men, it was announced here yesterday.

Officials of the local chapter wish to make clear the fact that the check is the exclusive property of the person who receives it.

When a family is in need because of loss of income due to the call to service of a member of the family, they should apply at the local Red Cross for assistance whether material or otherwise.

If such assistance is given by the Red Cross there is no deduction taken from the allotment checks for this service.

Funds used for such aid are local funds designated for the assistance of families of men in service.

If a family asks for assistance on the loan basis its wishes are granted but there is no time limit for repayment and no interest charge is made.

In case repayment of the loan would prove to be a hardship on the family, the case worker will be glad to discuss the matter, a Red Cross official stated yesterday. Loans, however, are made only when the family prefers this method of aid.

Families of service men are urged to come to the headquarters of the Allegheny County Chapter of the Red Cross on the third floor of the post office building for aid in any emergency.

Hospital Swamped With Volunteer Blood Donors

Memorial List Contains 200 Names; Plasma Aids Explosion Victims

Response to an appeal for blood donors has been so great in recent days that attaches at the Memorial hospital blood bank have mapped out a schedule so that a limited number of volunteers can be taken at a time, Harvey H. Weiss, superintendent, announced last evening.

Weiss said that the list contains between 175 and 200 names and appointments are made whereby five or six volunteers are asked to visit the hospital daily so they can contribute blood to a most worthy cause.

Organizations and individuals have rallied to the cause, Weiss said, and among the groups to volunteer to give blood is the Ridgeley Lions club whose members will visit the hospital next week.

Ten Pints for Stafford

Weiss said that seventy-five pints of liquid blood were on hand at the hospital when the recent explosion occurred at the Celanese plant. Ten pints from this supply were used for Harry Stafford, the most seriously burned of the Celanese workers.

The Allegheny hospital relies on the Memorial blood bank for blood in case of an emergency but the situation appeared so serious on the day of the Celanese explosion when approximately forty-five persons were brought to local hospitals suffering from burns and cuts that a portion of the civilian defense dried blood plasma supply at city hall was taken immediately to Allegheny hospital.

Six pints of blood plasma have been used at Allegheny hospital for two victims of the explosion. Distilled water is used with the dried plasma before it is injected into the veins of patients, according to hospital attaches.

Plasma Works Wonders

Infusions were needed for Garland Athey, 25, and Elmer Bittner, 29, of Frostburg, both of whom are reported to be "getting along nicely." Their attending physician said their backs were burned badly and asserted that the blood plasma worked wonders in improving their condition. Both are eating well and Athey is able to be out of bed in a wheelchair.

Weiss pointed out that there is nothing to the operation of "blood letting" as it is all over within ten minutes. Volunteers, however, must remain at the hospital and rest for approximately twenty minutes after the operation, he added.

Procedure Is Simple

"It's a simple procedure," Weiss stated. "A needle is stuck into a vein near the elbow and the volunteer is required to close and open his fist to pump the blood into the needle and thence into a jar. That's all there is to it."

Weiss stressed that the Memorial hospital will continue to accept blood donors and urged volunteers to contact the hospital and arrange for appointment.

Selling Course For Seniors Is Formed Here

High School Students Will Be Paid for Work in Local Stores

Formation of a course in sales training for high school seniors here was announced by Harold W. Smith, secretary of the chamber of commerce, yesterday afternoon following a meeting of members of the Mercantile bureau of the chamber with Charles R. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county schools, and R. Floyd Cromwell, supervisor of educational and vocational guidance of the state board of education.

Smith said "apparently sufficient interest was shown for the establishment of a course in co-operative distributive education."

Must Work 540 Hours

Under the plan, he said, pupils interested in sales training will be provided 540 hours of classroom work plus a minimum of 540 hours of employment in local stores during the school year.

It is proposed, Smith said, to give the pupils two weeks of preliminary instructions before they are assigned to the stores. According to that plan, he related, actual sales work will begin on September 23.

Pupils, Smith continued, will be employed at the prevailing wage rate for beginners in the stores to which they are assigned.

Class work will be under the supervision of a specially trained co-ordinator who will act as the instructor in the classroom, assist the pupils in becoming familiar with sales work and help the employer with any problems that may develop.

Kopp said it is planned to conduct the course in Allegheny high school but added that students of Fort Hill high school also may attend the classes.

List To Be Compiled

A list of students interested in the course will be compiled, Kopp said, and merchants will be given their choice of applicants. Already merchants have agreed to employ thirty-one students.

A similar plan has worked with considerable success in Frederick, Smith said.

Magistrate Holds Frostburg Man On Rape Charge

Girl Says She Fled down Mountainside from Al- leged Attacker

Accused of raping 17-year-old Helen Drummond, daughter of James Drummond, near Frostburg, Michael McKenzie, 42, Frostburg, was held without bond for action of the September term of Garrett county grand jury after a preliminary hearing before Magistrate H. C. Loraditch in Oakland yesterday morning.

State Trooper Graydon S. Dunlap, who investigated the case, said McKenzie, a hacker who hauls employees to and from work at the Celanese plant, raped the girl on Big Savage mountain near St. Johns, run, Garrett county, about 7:45 a. m. on June 8.

Once the girl was able to escape from her alleged attacker, Dunlap said, she fled through briars and brush down the mountainside for about three miles until she reached the home of Albert Winner at the foot of the mountain.

Frightened and Nervous

Arriving there frightened and nervous from the ordeal, and scratched, cut and bruised from her flight down the mountain, the girl told Winner's daughter, Miss Mary Winner, 18, what had happened, Dunlap said. They advised her to notify the police.

The Drummond girl met him in Frostburg, Dunlap said, adding that he took her to the office of a Frostburg physician who examined her and then substantiated her statement. A warrant was obtained and Dunlap said he apprehended McKenzie at 10 o'clock on the same night the alleged attack occurred. McKenzie was taken to Oakland and held in the Garrett county jail there without bond until the hearing yesterday.

According to Dunlap, McKenzie picked up the Drummond girl in Frostburg about 6 a. m. on June 8 and drove her to the Celanese plant where she intended to apply for a job but learned that because of the recent explosion help was not being employed.

Returned to Frostburg

After learning that she could not secure a job there, Dunlap said the girl returned to Frostburg with McKenzie and several other riders. All the passengers but two, who resided at Finzel, got out of the car at Frostburg, according to Dunlap who added that McKenzie then asked the Drummond girl, riding in the front seat with him, to ride along to Finzel.

On the return trip from Finzel to Frostburg, Dunlap said McKenzie drove on Route 40 to the top of Big Savage mountain where he turned off on a dirt road leading to St. John's run.

Dunlap stated the girl told him she protested against going down the road and said she wanted to go to Frostburg to apply for a job at the pajama factory.
